

The Twenty Third
SUMMER WORKSHOP ON ANALYSIS OF
MILITARY OPERATIONS AND STRATEGY

July 7 – 21, 2019

at
Cornell University
Ithaca, New York

SWAMOS 2019

Sponsored by Columbia University's Saltzman Institute of War and Peace Studies

Purpose

SWAMOS familiarizes the next generation of scholars with military policy issues by providing a grasp of terms of reference, techniques of analysis, and illustrative cases. The workshop also aims to foster a network of academics with competence to evaluate military policy choices, support policy-relevant academic research and teaching on strategy, and maintain expertise and resources for informed judgment on military issues within the civilian community.

Among the topics considered in both historical and contemporary perspective, are:

- Utility and limitations of force as an instrument for achieving political objectives
- Conventional land and air warfare
- Approaches to evaluating tactics, operational plans, and strategies
- Unconventional warfare
- Defense budgeting and program evaluation
- Methodological issues and debates about assessment of military effectiveness.

22 competitively selected participants meet in morning plenary sessions for lectures and discussions. The group divides into smaller seminar groups for some of the afternoon sessions.

Please note that in contrast to some earlier years, the 2019 workshop will last for two weeks.

Instructors

The instructors combine experience in academic analysis, the Washington D.C. policy milieu, and the military profession.

Directing faculty are Professors Richard Betts (Columbia) and Stephen Biddle (Columbia).

In addition to the directing faculty, visiting lecturers who have come to previous workshops for several days at a time have included: Eliot Cohen (SAIS), Paul Pillar (Georgetown), Bruce Blair (Princeton), Conrad Crane (Strategic Studies Institute), Stephen Rosen (Harvard), Stephen Kidder, John Nagl, and Kevin Weddle (U.S. Army), Tami Biddle (Army War College), Martha Crenshaw (Stanford), Peter Feaver (Duke), Michael Handel and Cdr. Michael O'Hara (Naval War College), Wade Hinkle (IDA), Jane Holl (Carnegie Commission), Capt. Wayne Hughes (Naval Postgraduate School), Andrew Krepinevich (CSBA), Richard Kugler (RAND), Ben Lambeth (RAND), Susan Marquis (Department of the Navy), Karl Mueller (RAND), Gen. William Nash (Harvard), Robert Pape (Chicago), Audrey Kurth Cronin (CRS), Mark Cancian (CSIS), Mary Habeck, (SAIS), Daniel Byman (Georgetown), Michael O'Hanlon (Brookings), Kenneth Pollack (CFR), Alex Roland (Duke), Capt. Peter Swartz (CNA), Barry Watts (Northrop Grumman Analysis Center), Cindy Williams (MIT), Andrew Exum (CNAS), Owen Coté (MIT), Janine Davidson (CFR), and Caitlin Talmadge (Georgetown).

Eligibility

Applicants should be junior faculty or Ph.D. students with some general background in security studies (such as international relations courses) but who have not developed special expertise in military matters.

Intent to make a career in strategic studies is NOT a requirement, but willingness to offer courses that include the subject is desired.

SWAMOS will pay for participants' travel and room and board during the workshop and they will be housed on the Cornell campus. In contrast to some earlier years there will be no additional stipend.

Successful applicants must prepare with advance reading and devote their full time to the workshop during its two-week term.

Past participants have been junior faculty and graduate students from Brandeis, Cambridge, CIDE, Columbia, Cornell, Duke, Fletcher, Georgetown, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, McGill, Moscow State, Notre Dame, U.S. Air Force Academy, NYU, Ohio State, Oxford, Penn State, Princeton, Quaid-I-Azam, Rutgers, Stanford, Stellenbosch, Sciences Po, Technion, Texas A&M, Yale, universities of California, Calgary, Chicago, Hull, Illinois, Georgia, Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Humboldt, Haifa, Pretoria, London, Virginia, Washington, and other institutions.

Evaluations from Previous Participants

"Downright fantastic."

"Best academic environment I've been in..."

"SWAMOS was simply the best academic experience I have had as a graduate student."

"This seminar taught me in three weeks what a semester worth of courses has in the past."

"The program was amazing... [it] opened new horizons for me in terms of research topics and career opportunities."

"The workshop was in general a smashing success. The opportunity to be exposed to issues of military analysis is truly unique in the scholarly world. The informal discussions in between classes and at night were some of the most useful and intellectually challenging times of the conference."

"I would have paid money to attend the workshop."

"SWAMOS greatly exceeded my expectations on many levels."

"I cannot imagine learning more about this subject in such a relatively short time."

"... a once in a lifetime experience."

"... one of the most valuable professional experiences I've ever had."

"For years I've heard past participants rave that SWAMOS was an unparalleled experience -- yet these three weeks still managed to exceed my expectations."

"... high learning curve, excellent instruction."

"SWAMOS... provides comprehensive learning in theory, analysis, and practice for a highly talented group of participants."

"An extremely valuable experience... not just in terms of nuts and bolts, but in thinking more broadly about why [to] study this subject."

"The size of the groups was ideal. There were enough people for discussions and there were also plenty of opportunities to talk in class, but also out of class, with the faculty and visitors."

"I've read things I would not otherwise... and I'm glad I did."

"Scheduling and pace: perfect. By the end of the afternoon sessions, my brain generally hit overload, so it was nice to have afternoon time to ourselves... and to get to know each other well."

"Anyone who thinks this field is no longer important should come for just one day to SWAMOS."

"It will likely have a long-term impact on my work and life."
